Blowin' in the Wind – a brief appreciation

These lines are from the poem 'Blowin' in the Wind' by Bob Dylan. Bob Dylan is an American singer and song-writer. In this poem, the poet asks nine questions to which no specific answers are given or expected. Out of the nine questions, here there are three questions in these lines.

The poet asks first "how many roads must a man walk down before you call him a man?" He asks actually how much a man should experience in life or how long a man should endure in life before he is recognized as a human being. He asks, how many seas a white dove should cross before it can peacefully rest or sleep finally in the sand. White doves are symbol of peace, and when we are going to get really the symbolized peace. "How many times must the cannon balls fly before they are forever banned?" is a similar question. White doves and banning of cannon balls are signals of the arrival of peace and end of wars and conflicts; but when will the symbolized peace be realized? The answers to all these questions are known to all and blowing in the wind. People need only open their eyes and ears to catch them.

These questions are the best example of the literary device Rhetorical question. The poet talks about the answers which are available or known easily to whoever actually wants them. He keeps on asking questions and talks about answers repeating the same lines “the answer, my friend, is blowin’ in the wind, the answer is blowin’ in the wind” without actually answering, and making use of another poetic device Refrain.

12. The loud and terrible cry of ‘fire!’, ‘fire!’ from someone made the narrator wake up from his sleep.
13. He could feel the heat of the floor easily because his feet were bare.
14. He fell down on a bundle of clothes with which he protected his face.
15. The narrator was surprised to hear a thin cry from the bundle of clothes in his hands.
16. Although it was a coincidence, the mother of the baby and the people assembled there thought that the narrator had risked his own life and saved the baby in a heroic effort. So they cheered much and made him a hero.
17. Chicken Garlic is the most expensive item on the menu card.
18. Rupees 50 is the price charged for Masala Dosa.
19. He can buy Paneer Butter Masala.
20. Fish Biryani and Paneer Butter Masala have the same price on the menu card.
21. Fish Curry Meals is the item which is costlier than Aloo Gobi and cheaper than Chicken Biryani.

22. Vanka- A Pitiful Orphan

The renowned Russian writer Anton Chkhov’s story ‘Vanka’ is a miserable story of a nine year old boy namely Vanka. By the death of his mother he became an orphan and his grandfather sent him to Moscow to apprentice to a shoemaker Alyakhin. Under his master he had to lead a miserable life which was worse than that of a dog. The master together with his wife punished him severely for silly matters. The other apprentices also treated him cruelly. It had been only three months since he reached there. But the tortures he underwent were beyond description.

Saddened by the loneliness and miseries he experienced there, he decided to write a letter requesting his grandfather to come and save him. The nostalgic feelings of his joyful life with his mother and grandfather in the village, especially at the time of Christmas, doubled his mental pains. He had secretly made arrangements for writing a letter, and he wrote it when the others had gone to church on the Christmas eve. He imploringly wrote: “come to me dear Granddad and take me away from here”. This single sentence is enough for the readers of the story to know about the plight of a child labourer like Vanka. The poor little child somehow completed writing the letter and ran out to post it. He even did not know the fact that a letter should have a proper address and enough postage stamps to reach it to the destination.

He posted it in the letter-box and came back. He went to sleep lulled by the rosy thoughts of his grandpa coming to his rescue and dreamed of going to have his happy days once again in his village.

Wild is ever wild

‘Adolf’ is a very beautiful story of a wild little rabbit told by the renowned man of letters DH Lawrence. Once his father brought home a tiny rabbit. He found it in the field lying by the side of its dead mother and siblings. If he had not taken it home, it would have been died there. They, the children at home, were very much delighted but their mother was not so happy on the arrival of the rabbit.

In the beginning it was motionless and refused to drink milk. But as days passed it became tamed and started growing mischievous. They named it Adolf and they loved him to take meals with them. He would take tea with them and sometimes hobble up to the sugar-basin. The mother kept an indifferent approach towards Adolf and always complained. She wanted it to be sent back to the woods. But day by day the children grew enchanted with it. For the mother it was worse than having a child to look after when she was alone at home. She could not keep Adolf away from the front door and there were cats prowling outside. One day as part of his mischievous play he brought down the curtain rod over mother’s beloved pelargonium.

It was his own doom he brought for himself and a heartless wildness had come over him. They understood that he must go and they decided to send him back. Once again the father stowed him into the great pocket of the pit-jacket and took him back into the wilderness.

Today is really a fruitful day for me! Quite unexpectedly my 25 years’ search came to an end today. Dr. AJ Cronin, the savior of my life, the donor of my second birth, appeared in front of me. Thank God, You’ve brought him in front of me! It’s sad he couldn’t recognize me in the beginning. I thought he wouldn’t have ever forgotten me. It’s okay, he recollected everything when I explained. It’s been a quarter of a century since the incident happened. He is a doctor and how many people and incidents in his life! It’s my foolishness to expect him to recognize me at a single sight. Anyhow, he appreciated the changes happened in my life and he valued my present deeds. He also became very much glad to know that his efforts didn’t go wasteful. Thank God once again, for showing my wife the savior and mender of my life!

I: Good morning doctor! You are happy in this new house, aren't you?

Doctor: Yes, of course. I'm very happy here.

I: Have you ever visited your old house after the incident?

Doctor: Yes, the following day I went there to take my things.

I: Did you see the snake again there?

Doctor: No. Nothing was there. Even my dress and other things were not there.

I: Oh, what happened to them?

Doctor: Some thieves have stolen everything.

I: I think you haven't lost anything valuable, have you?

Doctor: No. I lost only some used dress. By the way, If my friends like you hadn't helped me, I would not have been able to find this new and comfortable house. Thank you!

I: Don't mention. It's our pleasure. See you then, bye!

Doctor: Bye!

Dear Sir,

I am Satyajit Ray, a film director from Kolkata. I believe that your company is now settled in the same city. I am in need of your help.

I have a plan to shoot a film namely 'Goopy Gyne Bagha Byne' in which there is a scene of the hero meeting a wild tiger in the forest. A trained tiger is required to shoot this scene. I came to know that you can help me by providing a tiger with its trainer. I need the tiger only for a couple of hours. I and my crew are well aware of the restrictions of the Animal Welfare Board in connection with wild animals. I have already availed the approval of the Chairman of the Animal Welfare Board in this regard.

I will be grateful and obliged to you, if you provide me with a tiger and its trainer. Thank you in advance.

Yours faithfully,

Sd/
Satyajit Ray.

'Martha' in the story 'The Scholarship Jacket' is a character of mixed feelings. She is a little sensitive but bold and brilliant. She is 14 years old and an eighth grade student maintaining a consistent 'A' level since her first grade. She is in every sense qualified enough to win the prestigious scholarship jacket, an award to the class valedictorian of her school. Martha is the daughter of a poor Mexican farmer. Owing to the poverty at her own family, she has been given to her grandparents to raise. In appearance she is very lean and her friends call her 'beanpole' and 'string bean'. Once she happens to overhear a heated argument between her two teachers. She understands that a conspiracy is going on to undermine her winning the jacket. Eventually the principal asks her to pay 15 dollars for the award. Although bold and brilliant, this incident makes her cry in despair. But when Martha's granddad tells her that a paid award is not an award at all, she accepts his words. She strongly believes that she deserves the award by merit and it will come her way. She determines to tell the principal looking straight into his eyes that she is not ready to pay. Here, we see a bold Martha. In front of the strong determination of her grandfather and bold stand of Martha, the opponents cannot fortify themselves for long and finally Martha wins the Scholarship Jacket, her life's dream!

At the age of 19, Adichie left Nigeria to go to university in the United States. In the US she had an American roommate. The roommate was shocked to hear the excellent English of Adichie. She had not known the fact that English was the official language of Nigeria. The roommate had a single idea about Africa in which all Africans are members of a tribal community having no education and modern culture, simply leading a life of many rituals accompanied by tribal music and folk dances. The roommate had a patronizing mentality towards Adichie. In her single story, Africans were never similar to her and in human relations never equal to her. While in the US Adichie for the first time began to realize her own identity as an African. She also realized that even if she were in place of the roommate, she too would think of Africa in the same way as her roommate thought of it. One of Adichie's university professors once told her that her novel was not authentically African. He meant that her characters were like modern, rich and educated Americans. They should have been poor and uneducated to be authentic. Adichie understood that the professor had also an incomplete idea, a single story, about Africans and the single story was only a partial truth.
